

//Lab

Notes

Need to take notes on the spot? Now you can use your phone to make notes to yourself. This can come in handy whenever you need a quick reminder or something to write on. You can send your completed notes to other devices or even email it to yourself (so you can then access it on the computer).

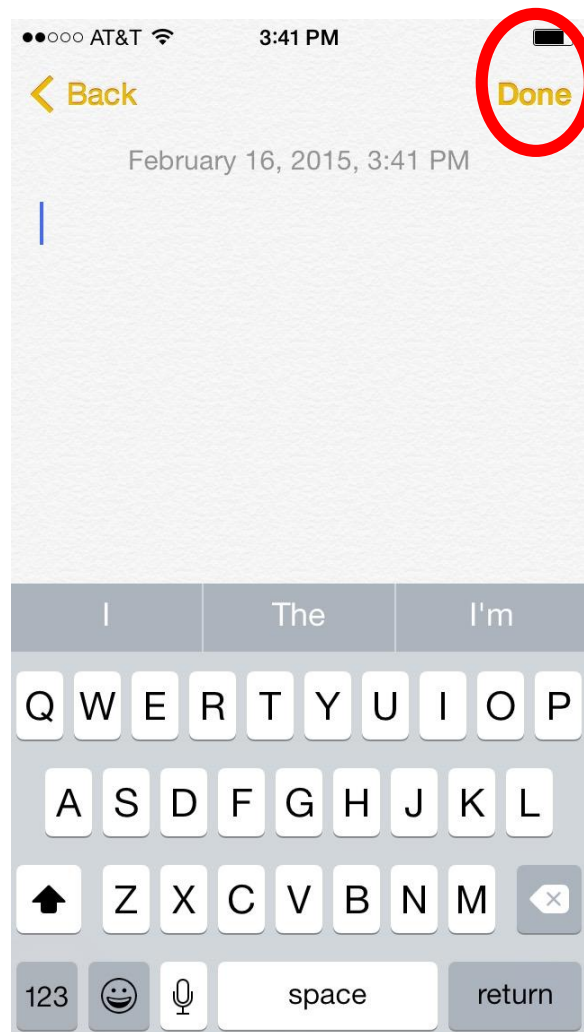

1. Open the Notes app.

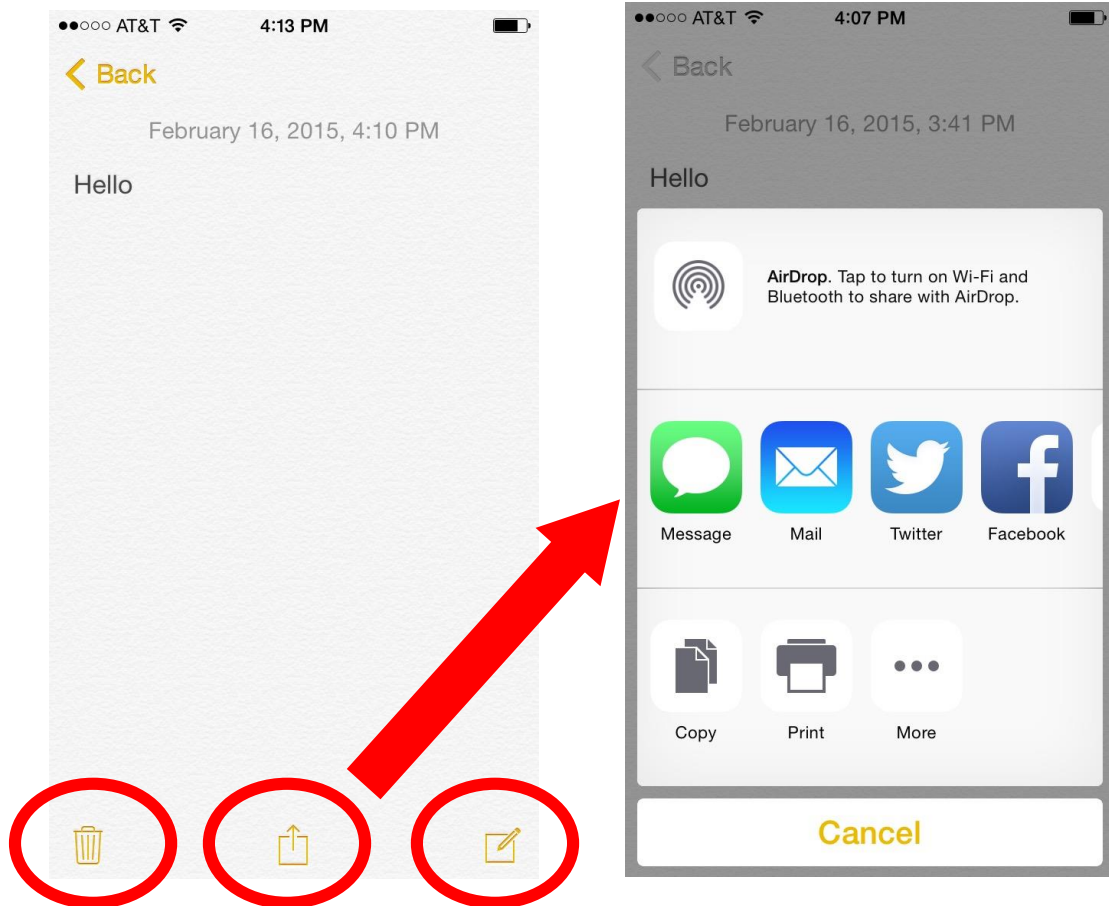

2. A history of past notes will appear. You can choose to edit/add on to them by selecting one or create a new one by selecting "New."

3. Click on the screen; the keyboard will appear so you can type away. This is basically like a blank notepad. You can type letters, numbers, symbols, and anything else that you would normally be able to type on the iPhone/iPad keyboard.

4. Once you are done, click "Done" to save the note. You will need to click this button to ensure that your note is not accidentally deleted. Once you do this, you can choose to close the app if you would like.
5. Click on the arrow icon to share the note through iMessage, email, Twitter, or Facebook. This can be very useful if you want to be able to see the note on a new device or share the note with other people (for instance, if you composed a letter here and wanted to email it to someone, you could press the Mail app icon in this list).
6. Select the trash icon to delete the note. Choose the writing pad icon to start a new note.

Phone: (470) 222-5194

Email: content@technocademy.org

Website: www.technocademy.org